

Bylaws 101

First of all, a set of By-laws is a living, breathing document. It is there to provide guidance and to keep transitions in leadership as seamless as possible, but it is also meant to change as the organization needs to change. It should provide structure with flexibility. There are things that follow Federation, but they should not be a burden to small clubs. They should not be overbearing, like having too many elected positions for a small club. It would be like having a 100-page users-manual for an alarm clock.

This template is provided to aid you in updating your Aggie Mom Club Bylaws and Standing Rules. Every Aggie Mom Club is actually a Member Club of the Federation of Texas A&M University Mothers' Clubs. As such, they are subject to the Bylaws of the Federation, and certain verbiage of the Member Clubs' bylaws should mirror that of the Federation. Federation establishes the purpose, membership criteria and levels, and other basic rules under which the member clubs are to operate to meet IRS and 501(c)3 guidelines.

You will notice this template has print in black & white, print highlighted with yellow and print highlighted in blue.

Black & White – All bylaws are strongly suggested to have this exact verbiage.

Yellow – Suggested verbiage, as it may or may not pertain to your club (use these to tailor to your clubs size, number of officers, special committees, etc)

Blue – IF you have these items, the verbiage should match exactly.

Notes:

When is it a revision and when is it an amendment?

When you “amend,” you keep the bylaws as they are and change a smallish portion.
When you “revise,” you prepare a whole new text in which everything can be different.

Usually notice is required when proposed bylaws will be presented for discussion and vote. Clubs must let people know in advance what is planned. This is just common sense for changes to the organization's key governing document. And typically it takes a two-thirds vote to amend bylaws. Putting things in bylaws like actual amount of dues, specific dates or places of meetings is not recommended. (If the church you meet in changes their schedule and your club is forced to meet somewhere else on another day, you are absolutely out of compliance with your own bylaws by no fault of your own... so don't be quite so specific.)

It is common to send notice of vote to change bylaws along with proposed changes to all members a minimum of 30 days prior to next meeting. It is actually good practice to send them out 30 days prior, then after revision or amendment passes on first reading, then take a final vote on the second reading at a subsequent meeting..

Every Amendment Date or Revision Date must be listed at the end of the document.

Standing Rules - Not All clubs have standing rules, but there may be things in your bylaws that would be better suited to Standing Rules, i.e. Scholarship criteria, etc.

As to Scholarships – If your club offers a scholarship, it must publicly announce the scholarship criteria, application availability, and deadlines, by publishing information with impacted school financial aid officers, in the local paper, on club website and on social media.

The clubs must accept applications from students in all areas/counties of which you have paid members. i.e. If your ‘Bravo County’ Aggie Moms Club has members with zip codes that fall in other counties (‘Bravo County’ along with ‘Delta County’ and ‘Echo County’ and ‘Tango County’ and ‘Zulu County’) then you must publish the scholarship requirements in ALL of those counties, AND accept ANY applications from those counties (not just children of member moms) for consideration. You may NOT grant ‘scholarship points’ for meeting attendance or fundraiser hours worked.

Scholarships must be EQUALLY OPEN TO ALL students of areas whose members you serve, not just to member’s children.
